

15.3	Non-Gaussian Conditions: Nonparametric Tests for Location	401
15.3.1	Comparison of Two Groups: Wilcoxon Tests	401
15.3.1.1	Case I: Paired Data—Sign Test and Wilcoxon Signed-Rank Test	401
15.3.1.2	Case II: Independent Samples—Wilcoxon Rank-Sum Test	404
15.3.2	Comparison of Three or More Groups: Kruskal–Wallis Test	406
15.3.3	Two-Way Layout with $n = 1$: Friedman Test for Repeated Samples	407
15.4	When Significant Is Not Significant	410
15.4.1	Nature of Statistical Significance	410
15.4.2	Testing for the Presence of a Medically Important Difference in Means	413
15.4.2.1	Detecting Specified Difference in Mean	414
15.4.2.2	Equivalence Tests for Means	415
15.4.3	Power and Level of Significance	415
15.4.3.1	Further Explanation of Statistical Power	415
15.4.3.2	Balancing Type I and Type II Error	417
	References	418
	Exercises	418
16.	Relationships: Quantitative Outcome	423
16.1	Some General Features of a Regression Setup	424
16.1.1	Dependent and Independent Variables	425
16.1.1.1	Simple, Multiple, and Multivariate Regressions	425
16.1.2	Linear, Curvilinear, and Nonlinear Regressions	425
16.1.2.1	Linear Regression	425
16.1.2.2	Curvilinear Regression	426
16.1.2.3	Nonlinear Regressions	427
16.1.2.4	Regression through Origin	428
16.1.3	Concept of Residuals	428
16.1.4	General Method of Fitting a Regression	429
16.1.5	Selection of Regressors	430
16.1.5.1	Multicollinearity	431
16.1.5.2	Statistical Significance: Stepwise Procedures	431
16.1.5.3	Other Considerations	432
16.2	Linear Regression Models	432
16.2.1	Simple Linear Regression	433
16.2.1.1	Meaning of Intercept and Slope in Simple Linear Regression	434
16.2.1.2	Estimation of Parameters of Simple Linear Regression	434
16.2.1.3	Confidence Intervals for the Parameters of Simple Linear Regression	435
16.2.1.4	Tests of Hypothesis for the Parameters of Simple Linear Regression	436
16.2.1.5	Confidence Band for Simple Linear Regression	437
16.2.2	Multiple Linear Regression	438
16.2.2.1	Elements of Multiple Linear Regression	438
16.2.2.2	Understanding Multiple Linear Regression	439
16.2.2.3	CI and Tests in Multiple Linear Regression	440
16.3	Adequacy of a Regression	440
16.3.1	Goodness of Fit and η^2	440
16.3.2	Multiple Correlation in Multiple Linear Regression	440
16.3.3	Statistical Significance of Individual Regression Coefficients	441
16.3.4	Validity of Assumptions	442
16.3.5	Choice of the Form of Regression	443
16.3.6	Outliers and Missing Values	446
16.4	Some Issues in Linear Regression	446
16.4.1	Implications of Regression	447
16.4.1.1	Standardized Coefficients	447
16.4.1.2	Other Implications of Regression Models	447

16.4.1.3	Equality of Two Regression Lines.....	448
16.4.1.4	Difference-in-Differences Approach with Regression.....	448
16.4.2	Some Variations of Regression.....	449
16.4.2.1	Ridge Regression.....	449
16.4.2.2	Multilevel Regression.....	449
16.4.2.3	Regression Splines.....	450
16.4.2.4	Analysis of Covariance.....	451
16.4.2.5	Some Generalizations.....	452
16.5	Measuring the Strength of Quantitative Relationship.....	452
16.5.1	Product-Moment and Related Correlations.....	452
16.5.1.1	Product-Moment Correlation.....	452
16.5.1.2	Statistical Significance of r	455
16.5.1.3	Comparison of Correlations in Two Independent Samples.....	456
16.5.1.4	Serial Correlation.....	456
16.5.1.5	Partial Correlation.....	456
16.5.2	Rank Correlation.....	457
16.5.2.1	Spearman Rho.....	457
16.5.3	Intraclass Correlation.....	458
16.5.3.1	Computation of Intraclass Correlation.....	459
16.5.3.2	ANOVA Formulation and Testing the Statistical Significance of ICC.....	459
16.6	Assessment of Quantitative Agreement.....	460
16.6.1	Agreement in Quantitative Measurements.....	460
16.6.1.1	Statistical Formulation of the Problem of Agreement.....	460
16.6.1.2	Limits of Disagreement Approach.....	461
16.6.1.3	Intraclass Correlation as a Measure of Agreement.....	462
16.6.1.4	Relative Merits of the Two Methods.....	462
16.6.2	Alternative Methods for Assessment of Agreement.....	463
16.6.2.1	Alternative Simple Approach to Agreement Assessment.....	463
16.6.2.2	Agreement Assessment for Different Measurements.....	464
	References.....	464
	Exercises.....	465
17.	Relationships: Qualitative Dependent.....	469
17.1	Binary Dependent: Logistic Regression (Large n).....	469
17.1.1	Meaning of a Logistic Model.....	470
17.1.1.1	Logit and Logistic Coefficients.....	470
17.1.1.2	Logistic versus Quantitative Regression.....	470
17.1.1.3	Etiological Specification of a Logistic Model.....	472
17.1.2	Assessing the Overall Adequacy of a Logistic Regression.....	472
17.1.2.1	Log-Likelihood.....	472
17.1.2.2	Classification Accuracy.....	474
17.1.2.3	Hosmer-Lemeshow Test.....	474
17.1.2.4	Other Methods of Assessing the Adequacy of a Logistic Regression.....	475
17.2	Inference from Logistic Coefficients.....	477
17.2.1	Interpretation of the Logistic Coefficients.....	477
17.2.1.1	Dichotomous Regressors.....	477
17.2.1.2	Polytomous Regressors.....	478
17.2.1.3	Continuous Regressors and Linearity.....	479
17.2.2	Confidence Interval and Test of Hypothesis on Logistic Coefficients.....	480
17.3	Issues in Logistic Regression.....	482
17.3.1	Conditional Logistic for Matched Data.....	482
17.3.2	Polytomous Dependent.....	483
17.3.2.1	Nominal Categories of the Dependent: Multinomial Logistic.....	483
17.3.2.2	Ordinal Categories of the Dependent Variable.....	483

17.4	Some Models for Qualitative Data and Generalizations.....	484
17.4.1	Cox Regression for Hazards.....	484
17.4.2	Classification and Regression Tree.....	485
17.4.3	Further Generalizations.....	486
17.4.3.1	Generalized Linear Models	486
17.4.3.2	Generalized Estimating Equations.....	486
17.4.4	Propensity Score Approach.....	487
17.5	Strength of Relationship in Qualitative Variables.....	488
17.5.1	Both Variables Qualitative.....	488
17.5.1.1	Dichotomous Categories	488
17.5.1.2	Polytomous Categories: Nominal	490
17.5.1.3	Proportional Reduction in Error (PRE).....	491
17.5.1.4	Polytomous Categories: Ordinal Association	492
17.5.2	One Qualitative and the Other Quantitative Variable	494
17.5.2.1	Coefficient of Determination as a Measure of the Degree of Relationship	494
17.5.2.2	Biserial Correlation	495
17.5.3	Agreement in Qualitative Measurements (Matched Pairs).....	495
17.5.3.1	Meaning of Qualitative Agreement.....	495
17.5.3.2	Cohen Kappa.....	496
17.5.3.3	Agreement Charts.....	497
	References	498
	Exercises	499
18.	Survival Analysis	503
18.1	Life Expectancy	503
18.1.1	Life Table	504
18.1.2	Other Forms of Life Expectancy.....	507
18.1.2.1	Potential Years of Life Lost	507
18.1.2.2	Healthy Life Expectancy	507
18.1.2.3	Application to Other Setups	507
18.2	Analysis of Survival Data	508
18.2.1	Nature of Survival Data.....	508
18.2.1.1	Types of Censoring	508
18.2.1.2	Collection of Survival Time Data.....	509
18.2.1.3	Statistical Measures of Survival.....	510
18.2.2	Survival Observed in Time Intervals: Life Table Method	510
18.2.2.1	Life Table Method	510
18.2.2.2	Survival Function.....	511
18.2.3	Continuous Observation of Survival Time: Kaplan–Meier Method	513
18.2.3.1	Kaplan–Meier Method.....	513
18.2.3.2	Using the Survival Curve for Some Estimations.....	515
18.2.3.3	Standard Error of Survival Rate (K–M Method).....	515
18.2.3.4	Hazard Function	516
18.3	Issues in Survival Analysis.....	517
18.3.1	Comparison of Survival in Two Groups.....	517
18.3.1.1	Comparing Survival Rates.....	518
18.3.1.2	Comparing Survival Experience: Log-Rank Test	519
18.3.2	Factors Affecting the Chance of Survival: Cox Model	521
18.3.2.1	Parametric Models	521
18.3.2.2	Cox Model for Survival	522
18.3.2.3	Proportional Hazards.....	522
18.3.3	Sample Size for Hazard Ratios and Survival Studies.....	524
	References	525
	Exercises	526